Introducing the HRA

A health reimbursement arrangement (HRA) is a financial account that works with your health plan. Your employer owns it and funds the account. You use the money to pay for qualified medical expenses.

How you benefit from an HRA

Your employer funds the account, tax-free. You don't put your own money into the HRA.

You can use your HRA money for anyone covered by your health plan.

You don't pay taxes on HRA dollars and it's not part of your income.

Extra dollars for your health care expenses

How your HRA works in five simple steps

- 1 Your employer funds the HRA and decides what it will cover.
- 2 The doctor's office sends the bill (claim) to your health plan.
- 3 The health plan processes the claim, then sends it to your HRA for payment.
- 4 You are responsible for your expenses until you reach your HRA deductible.
- 5 You choose how to pay the bill:
  - The HRA can send the money right to your bank account and you pay the bill directly.
  - You can select to pay the provider directly right from your HRA.

All systems go!

Use your HRA for these:

The HRA typically covers the same expenses that your health plan covers. Covered expenses include:

- In-network doctor visits
- Inpatient or outpatient hospital care
- Diagnostic exams
- Prescription medications

Heads up!

You can't use your HRA for these:

- Family or marriage counseling
- Cosmetic procedures
- Personal items such as toothpaste, lotions, or shaving supplies
- Herbs, vitamins, and supplements
- Non-prescribed over-the-counter medicines (except insulin)
- Any other item or service that isn't used for medical treatment and care as defined by the IRS

NOTE: Remember, your employer decides which medical expenses are eligible. It's a good idea to check your plan coverage before receiving care to make sure you can use your HRA for your medical expense.
